The Geneology of the Descendants of Luther Hinman, and His Wife, Catherine Salisbury.

Compiled by 1641224

Most of the Hinman in America trace their descent from Sergeant Edward Hinman, of Stratford, Connecticut, who first appeared in that community about 1650. The most authoritative text on the family is "A Family Record of the Descendants of Sergeant Edward Hinman, who First Appeared at Stratford, in Connecticut, about 1650," by Royal R. Hinman, of New York, which was published in 1856. This text may be found in the New York and Chicago Public Libraries, and in most other libraries where any pretence is made at keeping a working geneological library. Data concerning the family, which does not agree in all of the details with the text mentioned above, may be found in "A Catalogue of the Names of the Early Puritan Settlers of the Colony of Connecticut, etc." by the same author, published in 1852-1856.

In spite of the great amount of labor and care which this well-known antiquarian and geneologist expended in the preparation of his books, <sup>details</sup> they are not always correct. Sometimes there are obvious inaccuracies, presumably <sup>due</sup> to the condition of the old records and the faulty recollection of the aged people consulted. Incomplete ~~data~~ regarding various branches leaves much to be desired. The record of the portion of the family to which Luther Hinman belonged, that of the children of Titus Hinman (4), who was killed at Wyoming, Pennsylvania, in the famous massacre, is one of those <sup>records</sup> which are given fragmentarily.

1296229/23
It is in the hope of making available to more of the family that early history that this material is written, as well as to make a more or less permanent record on which it is hoped to build a record of the entire list of the descendants of Titus (4) to the present time. The assistance of the members of the family in the collecting of the necess-solicited, and they are requested to correct such inaccuracies or omissions as they may be able to <sup>improve</sup> ~~do~~.

Sergeant Edward Hinman married Hannah Stiles, the daughter of Francis and Sarah Stiles, of Windsor, Connecticut. Francis Stiles was born in Milbroke, Bedfordshire, England, and was baptized on August 1, 1602. He had been steward to Sir Richard Saltonstall, and came from London to Dorchester in 1634-5, on the ship, Christian. He was a carpenter. His brothers John, Henry and Thomas remained in England. Six children were born to Francis and Sarah Stiles, of whom, Hannah, who married Sergeant Edward Hinman, was the fifth.

Sergeant Edward Hinman seems to have <sup>had</sup> some connection with a company of troops under Captain John Underhill in offering services to Governor Stuyvesant against the Indians. According to the Dutch records it seems that the Dutch governor had about as much faith in the English colonists as <sup>he had</sup> <sup>so</sup> in the Indians and rejected the offer. Tradition says that the company was disbanded soon afterward at Stamford, Connecticut, and it is thought that Sergeant Edward Hinman went from there to Stratford, where he afterward married and raised his family. The first ten years records at Stratford were lost in the burning of them in 1649.

Sergeant Edward Hinman and his wife, Hannah, had eight children as follows: ( Titus, underlined is the ancestor of Luther Hinman. )

1. Sarah, b. Sept. 10, 1653.
2. Titus, b. June 1655 or 1656. (Known as Captain Titus.)
3. Samuel, b. Jan. or June 1658.
4. Benjamin, b. February 1662 or 1663.
5. Hannah, b. July 15, 1666.
6. Mary, b. 1668.
7. Patience, b. 1670.
8. Edward, Jr., b. 1672.

Sergeant Edward Hinman died November 26, 1681. His wife died in 1677.

The second child of Edward and Hannah Hinman was their eldest son, Titus. When he became a man he was Captain of the train band, or military company which went out to found Woodbury, Connecticut, of which place, then known as Pomparaug, he was an original settler. He was a member of the General Assembly for seven sessions between 1712 and 1720. In 1683 Captain Titus Hinman married Hannah Coe, supposedly of Stratford, Connecticut. She was born in 1655 and died in 1700. ( Cothren, Ancient Woodbury, v.3, p.506, says however: "Hannah, w. Capt. Titus Hinman, 88 yrs. 1733" in listing deaths in Southbury. ) The second wife of Captain Titus was Mary Hawkins, of Woodbury, whom he married in 1701 or 1702. ( This according to Cothren, pp.556-564. R.R.Hinman in his Puritan Settles gives the same date, but in his Family record he gives <sup>Jan 14,</sup> 1703<sup>4</sup>. Evidently the earlier date is correct.) Captain Titus Hinman died at Woodbury on April 5, 1736 and his wife Mary died in June 1758, aged 80 years. The children of Captain Titus Hinman and his two wives were:

- By Hannah Coe Hinman. 26,
  1. Ephraim, bap. July/1685
  2. Joseph, bap. June 1687.
  3. Andrew, bap. April 1690.
  4. Titus, bap. June 1694 or 1695, d. in infancy.
- By Mary Hawkins Hinman ( apparently.)
  1. Ephraim, b. Jan. 4, 1702-3, d. Jan.17, 1703.
  2. Titus, Jr., b. Mar.1703-4, d. Mar.8,1747.
  3. Eleazer, b. May 1704, or April 1705.
  4. Timothy, bap. Mar.4, 1708 or 1709. (b.Mar.4,1709, acc. to Cothren.)
  5. Mary, bap. Feb. 1713 or 1714.
  6. Hannah, b. Mar.1720 or 1721. (1721 acc.to Cothren.)
  7. Patience, bap. July 17, 1722.

Titus Hinman, Jr., the sixth child, and apparently the second by Mary Hawkins, was married to Sarah Noble, of New Milford, Connecticut, on June 8, 1721. He lived at Southbury, Connecticut. He died on March 8, 1747. Titus Hinman, Jr., and his wife, Sarah Noble, had eleven children as follows:

1. Patience, b. July 17, 1722.
2. Titus, (3rd), bap. 1725, (R.R.Hinman in his Family Record says d. Aug.1750. Cothren says, b.Apr.27,1725, d. June 2, 1727.)

3. Ephraim, bap. Feb. 1727. (b. 1727, acc. to Cothren.)
4. Sarah, bap. Nov. 17, 1728.
5. Rachel, bap. Oct. 5, 1731. (Oct. 2 or 3, acc. Cothren.)
6. Titus (4th), bap. Oct. or Nov. 1733.
7. Amie, bap. 1736.
8. Prudence, bap. Sept. 3, 1738.
9. Lucy, bap. March or May 1740.
10. Enos, bap. July 25, 1742.
11. Annis, bap. March 1747, d. in infancy.

Titus Hinman, (4th), the sixth child of Titus Hinman, Jr., and his wife Sarah Noble, was the second of the children to be named Titus, his younger brother Titus having died in infancy. Titus Hinman, (4th) was married on November 16, 1757, to Johanna Hurd, daughter of Sergeant Zadok Hurd and his wife Esther. (Cothren calls him Ensign Zadok Hurd.) She (Johanna) was bap. May 24, 1741 ~~1741/1742/1743/1744~~ Johanna Hurd's father, bap. Jan. 1704, Zadok, was the son of Sgt. Benjamin Hurd, (b. Feb. 16, 1666) of Roxbury, Connecticut, and his wife Sarah Kimberly. Sgt. Benjamin <sup>a surveyor</sup> was the son of John Hurd, a miller of Woodbury, Connecticut, and his wife, Johanna Judson. John Hurd was the son of Adam Hurd (b. 1611) and his wife Hannah Barbraum (or Bertrand or Bertram) who lived at Stratford in 1644. Adam Hurd was the son of John Hurd, a Civil Engineer, born in Somersetshire, England, who migrated to the Colonies before 1640 and settled in Windsor, Connecticut. (A History and Geneology of the Family of Hurd, by Dena D. Hurd, 1910).

Titus Hinman and his wife, Johanna, together with his sister, Rachel and her husband, John Garrit, moved into what is now western Pennsylvania at a time when there was a dispute between Connecticut and Pennsylvania both of whom claimed the territory under Royal Patent. To the officials of Connecticut the territory was known as Westmoreland County, Connecticut. Titus Hinman lived in what is called Hanover Township, Luzerne County at the present time. The territory is also known as the Wyoming Valley. Titus Hinman seems to have been somewhat prominent in local matters as the local assembly met at his home on some occasions, he acted as moderator on several occasions, and there is a record of his having been appointed on a committee to raise certain charitable funds.

Titus Hinman (4th) was made an ensign in the 5th Company of the 24th Connecticut Regiment in May 1777. Whether he was a soldier in the <sup>before this</sup> company/does not appear, but it is probable that he was. The <sup>entry</sup> record in the public records (May 1777) merely states "This assembly do establish Titus Hinman to be Ensign of the 5th Company or train band in the 24th regiment in this state." (The Public Records of the State of Connecticut, October 1776-February 1778, incl., Charles J. Hoadley, State Librarian, Hartford, 1894, page 270, May 1777.)

Ensign Titus Hinman, together with his brotherinlaw, Hohn Garrit, and many others, was killed in the Battle of Wyoming on July 3, 1778. His name is on the monument since erected on the site of the battle and massacre. Ensign Titus Hinman was under the command of Captain Lazarus Stewart, of Hanover, whose company of forty men formed a part of the hastily collected troops and irregulars under Colonel Zebulon Butler. Colonel Zebulon Butler's 300 men and boys were opposed by 800 men under the command of John Butler. John Butler's troops were made up of Tory Rangers, a detachment of Sir John Johnson's Royal Greens and 500 Indians, chiefly Senecas and Cayugas.

After the massacre Johanna Hinman managed to secape in an open boat with her children and finally reached safety in Connecticut. She apparently lived at Southbury. No record has been found of her death.

The list of the children of Titus and Johanna Hinman <sup>given here</sup> is incomplete. Tradition among the children of Luther Hinman was to the effect that Luther was the child of this union. His name appears in no list of the children so far discovered, but they are admittedly incomplete. There are many bits of evidence to support the statements of the older people of the family, tho as yet actual documentary evidence is lacking. In the old copy of the geneology in the possession of Jack J. Hinman, Jr., which has been in the family many years, there is a mark in very old ink opposite the name of Ensign Titus Hinman (4th) while a pencil notation says, "this is our grandfather." Milton Remy, son of Abigail Hinman Remy, a daughter of Luther Hinman, said that he had heard his grandmother tell about the massacre. He died several years ago, about 1914. The date of Luther Hinman's birth was supplied by Milton Remy from the date in <sup>a</sup>the bible in his possession. No more of Luther is known until his marriage to Catherine Salisbury in 1803. The eldest son of Luther was named Titus in accordance with the family custom and the name persisted for another generation.

The incomplete list of the children of Ensign Titus and Johanna, or Joanna Hinman is given as follows:

1. Solomon, bap. Nov. 1758.
2. Hester, b. Nov. 22, 1761.
Titus (5th)
Luther, b. October 28, 1774.

It is probable that Solomon and Hester were born in Southbury, Conn., and hence are recorded, while the other children being born in Pennsylvania were not properly recorded or the records were lost or destroyed at the time of the massacre. <sup>As noted above,</sup> There is a tradition of the descendants of Titus (5th) that he was the youngest child.

Titus Hinman, (5th) was put under the care of David Pierce, of Southbury, Connecticut, to be brought up. Probably this was an apprentice agreement. Titus (5th) married Ruth Botsford at Southbury, Connecticut, on October 12, 1786. Later he removed to Harpersfield, New York, where he was living in 1840. The children of Titus and Ruth Botsford Hinman were:

1. Titus Bennett Hinman, b. Nov. 1, 1787.
2. Cyrus, b. Mar. 23, 1790.
3. Abraham Chauncey, b. March 2, 1792.
4. Amos, b. July 29, 1794.
5. Johanna, b. March 10, 1797.

Luther Hinman~~x~~ was married in Claverack Township, Westmoreland County, Connecticut, ( this included 1/2 of Towanda, 1/3 of Wysox and the lower Sheshequin flats, now in Bradford County, Pennsylvania.) The Luzerne County Federalist, WilkesBarre, Pennsylvania, April 16, 1803 says the date of the marriage of Luther Hinman to Catherine Salisbury was April 1803. According to the record of Milton Remy, the date was March 20, 1803.

Catherine Salisbury was the fifth child of Henry Salisbury, Jr., and his wife, Catherine Head. Catherine Salisbury was born July 17, 1783 and died March 24th, 1826. She was buried in Little Cedar Cemetery near Brookville, Franklin County, Indiana. After her death, Luther Hinman married Margaret Hoagland on February 24, 1828. There were no children by the second marriage. Luther Hinman died on January 8, 1846 and was buried in Haw Creek Cemetery, near Hope, Batholomew County, Indiana.

Henry Salisbury, Jr., father of Catherine Salisbury Hinman, was the son of Henry Salisbury and his wife, Elizabeth Simpson, said to have been from Edinburgh, Scotland. Henry Salisbury, Jr., was born at Kinderhook, New York, in 1733 and died at Monroeton, Bradford County, Pennsylvania, on April 1, 1825. His wife Catherine Head was the daughter of George Head, of Nine Partners, Dutchess County, New York. George Head, of Dutchess County, New York, was a first lieutenant and a captain in Colonel Morris Graham's Regiment of New York Militia <sup>(Revolutionary War.)</sup> which came from that county. Henry Salisbury was a private in Captain Edmund Matthews' <sup>company</sup> in 1755 and a corporal in Captain Johannes Hogeboom's <sup>company in</sup> 1767. ( Ann.Rept. of the State Historian of New York, vol. 1, p.703,706,787,802,v.2.p871.0

(Data regarding George Head: New York State Archives, v.1, p.279, New York in the Revolution, v.1, p.247; Calendar of New York Historical Manuscripts, v.1, p.68. In last mentioned as an incorporator of North-east in Dutchess County.) These regiments and companies were raised in the territory where George Head and Henry Salisbury, Jr., lived at the time, but carry no further identification.

Tho there is evidence in the above of Henry Salisbury's service in colonial wars, there is doubt about his active participation in the army during the Revolution. There is no available record of such service. It has been said he was a Revolutionary soldier and that he was wounded in the arm at the capture of Cornwallis. Whether he had been a soldier or not, the statement of his accident is as follows: Following the surrender of Cornwallis on October 19, 1781, there was held a public rejoicing at Claverack, Columbia County, New York. During the celebration Colonel Peter VanNess requested Mr. Salisbury to assist in the firing of a piece of cannon. In ramming home a charge, it exploded, carrying away Mr. Salisbury's right arm. (Manuscripts of the Colony and State of New York, Vol. 16, Folio 139. quoted in D.A.R. record, Mary Salisbury McHarg, No. 47630.) This was a not unusual accident in firing the old muzzle loading cannon. If a spark from an earlier charge remained in the piece the ignition of the powder charge and the projecting of the rammer might carry away the arm of the man serving the gun. It does not seem very likely that Colonel Van Ness would ask an inexperienced man to take charge of a duty of this sort. Several ladies have used this record to obtain membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution. More details of the Salisburys may be obtained in histories of Bradford County, for example, "History of Bradford County, Pennsylvania," by David Craft, L.H.Everts and Company, Philadelphia, 1878, p.323, <sup>and</sup> "History of Monroe Township and Borough, 1799-1885," C.F.Heverly, Towanda, Pa, 1885.

Luther Hinman and his wife Catherine Salisbury Hinman seem to have lived for some time in Bradford County, then moved to Luzerne County and then to Franklin County Indiana. ~~April 1835 / May 1835 / 1835 / 1835~~ Their Children were:
